The Theories and Assademy—A Revel Ratertainment—An Experience

with a Table.

RICHMOND, VA., December 20, 1886.

Christmas is coming ! Yes, it is., How de I know? Well, I feel it somehow. I can't leli exactly. But there are "outward and visible signs," dear reader, of the great festival, so very especially dear to make," rather the reverse lately. What sort et signs? I bear some one say. Well, first, the shop-windows, bright with toys and highls, and everything tempting to the eyes and purse, the crowded streets, and then the faces of the dear little ones whom if meet, not e-creeping like smalls, unwillingly to school," but hurrying loyously, thinking of the holiday week. Speaking of Christmas-day, I really hope there will be little firing of cracking of Christmas-day, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts talking and plandaid everal visits, and everywhere I go I find the good wife busts and the feeting of the bridge tentire figure. The good wife busts are good to the book of the bridge tentire figure and vicin and the good with the g ter, and that the 25th day of December will seen pass off quietly, soberly, and with a subdued and holy joy that will fitly com-ce on earth and good will to men."

What has been amusing you recently ? " "What has been amusing you recently says a friend. I answer: "Well, I saw at the Theatre last week 'Skipped by the Light of the Moon,' which the bills said was 'funny, very, very funny,' "It did not tickle the theatrical palate here much. although it come well-recommended and had played to large houses in New York and elsewhere, and was regarded as a big

The takes of Killarney and Dublio, with its principal buildings, and St. Pat-rick's Cathedral, appearing tirst in daylight and then with the procession to the mid-night mass, were especially fine. "Dad's Girl," occupied the boards the last balf of the week. This was a light

I read with pleasure Mrs. Poweii's eard your paper last week, even if it was a ng at me. Some explanation was cer-inly due the public after the engagement of Arizona Joe, and her card shows the blame should fall primarily on her New York agent, by whom she was duped as well as the public. She means well, I doubt not, but she gets imposed upon sometimes, and then the theatre-goers suffer.

bys ago, and in the course of conver-n the subject of spiritualism was shed. Some believed in it—others did not. After several opinions had been exressed and incidents related, one of the party-at present out of the cityparty-at present out of the cityMr. B. D. Core, clerk in the State Treasurer's office, said: "Well, gentlemen," PROBABLY THEY WERE LYNCHED. Treasurer's effice, said: "Well, gentlemen, you may call it spiritualism or magnetism, or anything you choose, but I will tell you an experience I had during the war that I shall never forget, and, though hardly credible, I am willing to swear to the truth of it. During the winter of 1863-'64 I was detailed from my company, and sent out, in command of my company, and sent out, in command of a picket, to what was denominated 'the extension-line of defences,' about half a mine tension-line of defences,' abo medium, and every knock of a table had a meaning for him. That spirits would come at his bidding and commune with him he never doubted, and in his very soul be believed the medium to be a lifeless, inani-mute table.

once the table rose on one leg and began to spin around, and the medium remarked that an evil spirit was present. The table at once began to go around at a very rapid rate, till it had freed itself from all hands save Young's and mine. Young seemed terribly frightened. He exclaimed to me, 'Take your hands of!' I did so, and he did likewise, and, folding his arms, stood erect before the table, which was still tilted and standing on two legs. Instantiv the table leaped from the floor and clasped him around the waist. Then commenced a struggle, Young endeavoring to free himself and calling in piteous tones for help.

"No Haid Pawn." This is the title of a story just written by Mr. Tom Page, but not yet published. The scene is laid somewhere in Virginia, and the story is filiuswhere in Virginia, and the story is litus-trative of the superstition of the negroes about a pend which they suppose to be without a head. Hence the name in negro-dialect—"No Haid Pawn." Mr. Page, 1 am told, contempistes publishing all his stories in book-form next spring.

A fresh branch of Goochland rusticity wrote to a friend in this city the other day asking, "As courons are taken in payment of all kinds of licenses, can't they be used in procuring a marriage license?" With huckleberries, coupons, and a readjusting clergyman, the man may accomplish the nuptial tie.

Agong the church entertainments given last week the dolls' reception and tableaux at the First Baptist church lecture-room was indeed unique and attractive. Entering the door the first impression received when in need of a good liniment buy Salvana a beautifully-decorated room, the ever-Freen and usual Christmas holly, with its shining red berries, contrasting unely with the white posts and walls. In the centre of a circle formed by the different tableaux stood consequences.

In order that the little one might be satisfied as to whether she was actually crying. Next in order was a kitchen, which would do credit to any well-regulated household. As one stood before the stove and watched the knowing look of the old woman in charge of the culinary department, he became fully prepared for the delicacies spread out upon the table, which, with its eight happy-looking doils, formed the next tableau—the Xmas Dimer. The village school might be mentioned as the most unique in conception—from the school mistress, whose stern, uncompromising look of justice was made to seem even more severe by

The young ladies deserve great credit in getting up so charming an entertainment, and, with the more substantial things served in their restaurant, it is to be hoped they were financially rewarded.

If somebody had not said that that it is stranger than fiction, I should scarcely dure make the following statement, which, though it seems most improbable, is a verifable fact: A certain young society man, who, among other things, is noted for his who, among other things, is noted for his dreamy, far-away look, has been for a long time a frequent visitor at the house of a rare and radiant maiden, to whom he is strongly attached. A few evenings ago, while on his way to call on another young lady it chanced that he had to pass his sweetheart's house. Unthit kingly, he ascended the steps, nulled the hell-handle, and did not realize that his destination had not been reached until the servant opened the door and said, "Walk in." "Oh, I didn't intend to come here. Please don't say that I called," he stammered out, and as the servant grinned b burried ingloriously down the steps and

"Some time during the winter a Mr. Ratellife, who lived near, asked me to bring Young to his house some evening and have a communication with the other land. Young consented after I had vouched that they passed within a short distance of the Bender place, and his companion was a communication with the other land. Young consented after I had vouched that way in the location and explaining that the belief. The evening angionized, after arriving at Mr. Ratellife's house a light table was procured, and a sufficient number seated themselves around it to form a complete circle, with their hands upon the table.

ALBEMARLE. AN INTERESTING WILL CASE IN THE COUNTY COURT. Some of the Evidence-The Decision-The

Harper Party-A Dynamice Explosion and Sensation. (Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch)

Charlotteville, December 20, 1886.

Five days of the County Court were taken up with the J. W. Jones will case, which presented some questions of interest. Some months after the death of Mr. Jones a paper was found amid the rubbish of an out-house used as a lumber-room, and was offered by Mr. J. N. Perkins, of Fluvanna, as the olograph will of Mr. Jones. It was dated the 14th of May, 1862, and was wholly written by Mr. Jones, scalled and signed, but it had an altestation clause and no witnesses. Folded up in the paper was a shp written by Mr. Jones also on the 14th of May, 1862, and an obituary notice of the death of a friend cut from a newspaper. The writing disposed of the entire estate of Mr. Jones—gave Mrs. J. N. Perkins $1,000 more than any other child, and cut off Mrs. Ayers with $100. It was proved that Mr. Jones was a very careful man; that he had two iron-safes in which he kept his papers, and that he had said to Mr. John M. Godwin, Mr. James Hawkins, and Mrs. Ayes that be had made no will; that the law made a good enough will for him, and that he wanted all his children to share equally in his estate.

Judge White, basing his opinion on a he wanted all his children to share equally in his estate.

Judge White, basing his opinion on a long line of decisions, held that the will on its face showed that it was not final; that the slip found with it was probably a memorandum for a will; that the paper lacked that certainty which the law required of a will. Judge White further declared that he thought parol evidence admissible, and from that, also, it was clear that the papers could not be sustained as a will. will. S. V. Southall and Samuel B. Woods

S. V. Southan and Samuel B. Woods represented the four contestants—Mrs. Ayres, of Danville; Mrs. Edwards, of Carlottesville; Mrs. Furcow, of Balti-more, and Jesse P. Jones, of Charlottes-ville; and Davis & Harmon represented Mrs. J. N. Perkins, of Fluvanna county.

Counsel for Mrs. Perkins afterwards Counsel for Mrs. Perkins afterwards made several motions to the court to probate either of the papers offered, and also to allow them a fee of $200 out of the Jones estate, all of which were denied by Judge White. An appeal was then taken to the Circuit Court, where the matter will probably come up before a jury at the May term. This morning at a quarter to 6 o'clock semebody exploded dynamite in close service, the trent wall of Harris's somebody exploded dynamite in close proximity to the front wail of Harris's foundry building, shattering windows, but doing no further harm. Considerable alarm was occasioned in the immediate neighborhood, as many thought a locomotive had exploded.

The Senior Lyceum of the Young Men's Christian Association gave an amusing entertainment last week in the shape of a mock-trial. One Samuel De Muil was charged with stealing a dog from one Edward Hyde, and the object of the defence was to prove that the dog was given to Mr. De Muil. In addition to the sage judge and keen-eyed clerk, and the busy lawyers on either side, there were several witnesses, and the young men who took the parts of Mrs. Bridget O'Rielly, the Irish woman; Zebedial Sloogadoo and Mary Jane Washington Johnston, the negroes, were laughable features of the make-up of the court-from.

Any person who shall fail to pay said taxes within the time so limited will be considered ment in a journey of four days to the Rio Grande. It is a dangerous country for a SWEET CIDER, man to carry treasure through, but one who could as out such a route must have been ingenious enough so to disguise on timself evidences that would tempt robbery as to have passed through it unbarmed.

Taking all these circumstances into secoust, Manager C. D. Hess has a theory about the way the awindler got away with his booty. He is sati-fied that the man who called on him at Compopilitan Hall about a fortnight before the Mexicans were taken in is the swindler. Some of the clothing carried by the swindler was marked "C. B." Mr. Nichols had in his employ about two years ago in Mexico a wide-awake, clever Hebrew, who called himself Carlos Bloch. This man knew Mexican territory thoroughly. "Singularly Mr. Nichols suspected Bloch of complicity in the affair when he first heard of it. Bloch went to Las Vegas, New Mexico. on leaving Mr. Nichols's employ. As Mr. Nichols saw the caller at Cosmopolitan Hall, it is certain that he was not Bloch. Bloch indeed, would not need to ask for information about the City of Mexico, nor would be go there as Marcus Mayer's brother. Joh his well known there. Mr. Hess suspects, however, that Bloch was concerned with the swindle. If it were accomplished by one man, that man would need to know Mexican territory in order to get out of the country. Perhaps be had an accomplice to pilot him to safety. With the propensity of sharpers to drift together, the swindler and his accomplice may have met in Las Vegas. It would then have been a natural arrangement for the pilot to wait for his associate at some point on the railroad from which they could most easily get away from the line of pursuit. No better place could have been chosen for this purpose than the one at which the swindler left the train, and the course he afterward took could not have been more eleverly planned. He would have been more eleverly planned. He would have been fire or six days in reaching the boundary line, but he could easily cross it, and then make his way without trouble to numerous means of exit from that section. At Point Isabel, twenty-one miles from Brownsville, he could have taken a steamer for New Orleans, or he could have put himself without much extra trouble o Absolutely Pure.
